Beware of False Billing!

There are lots of reports to the Consumer's Affairs Center from people who received an invoice for an item you didn't purchase.

False billing is a fraudulent act of invoicing. Such notices are for example often sent to owners of domain names or by post mail, although not originating from the owner's own registrar.

One of the consultant's cases is that a fraudster forced a victim to make a phone call to the fraudster to withdraw the false suit which is purportedly the final announcement of litigation.

Advice of Consumer's Affairs

- If you have received an unfamiliar announcement with words related to lawsuit or lawyer, never contact the fraudster.
- If you receive litigation by a special delivery, when you feel strange or uneasy or you are not sure you are subject to obligation, please feel free to contact the Consumer's Affairs Center.

Contact the Consumer's Affairs Center asap, when you feel strange or worried.
